BOTHWELL CLINIC MANAGERS EARN PROFESSIONAL CERTIFICATION

SEDALIA, MO—Bothwell Regional Health Center clinic site managers Tami Hesseltine and Ashley O'Bannon have earned the professional designation of Certified Medical Practice Executive (CMPE) from the American College of Medical Practice Executives.

Hesseltine

The designation of CMPE demonstrates that Hesseltine and O'Bannon achieved board certification and are knowledgeable in best practices for managing medical practices to ensure the smooth delivery of health-care services.

Hesseltine, clinic site manager for Bothwell OB/GYN Associates, began working for Bothwell in June 2012. She has a bachelor's degree in psychology and worked in health-care management in California before moving to Missouri with her husband, who is retired from the Air Force. She also is the former county services director for the Sedalia Senior Center.

O'Bannon joined Bothwell in 2013 and is the clinic site manager for Bothwell Family Health, Bothwell Ear, Nose & Throat, Bothwell Internal Medicine and Bothwell Surgical Services. O'Bannon, who earned a degree in nursing, was a nurse in Marshall and at Katy Trail Community Health before becoming the clinic site manager at Katy Trail. She is currently working on her fellowship through the American College of Medical Practice Executives.

O'Bannon

With the exception of Bothwell Surgical Services, the clinic sites managed by Hesseltine and O'Bannon are located in the Bothwell Healing Arts Center, 3700 West 10th in Sedalia.

“We are proud of our clinic site managers and their achievement. This is a distinction that shows how committed our organization is to delivering exceptional health and wellness services to our community,” said CEO John Dawes.
