BOTHWELL EMPLOYEE RECOGNIZED AS CERTIFIED MATERIALS & RESOURCE PROFESSIONAL

Rick Langdon, director of Materials Management for Bothwell Regional Health Center, has earned the designation of Certified Materials & Resource Professional (CMRP) from the American Hospital Association.

The CMRP is a national credential that distinguishes individuals in the health-care materials and resource management profession. To earn the designation, Langdon met eligibility requirements regarding professional experience and education and passed the CMRP certification examination. The exam assesses competency in such areas as health-care procurement, inventory distribution, data management, finance and compliance.

Langdon has more than 27 years of health-care materials management experience and joined Bothwell in April 1994. As director of Materials Management for the health center, he oversees purchasing, receiving, warehouse and distribution for health center and its affiliates.
